Fantasy Racing Fitzdares

Developing UI/UX designs for a groundbreaking fantasy horse racing game that revolutionises horse betting. Players engage in competitive gameplay on a leaderboard, earning points based on the performance of horses that finish in the top 5.

While introducing a novel concept to the horse racing community, the aim is to maintain a sense of familiarity for those already familiar with the sport.

Sign-up Journey

talkSPORT

I completely redesigned the user journey for the customer sign-up process. Initially, there was a single page with numerous form fields, leading to many users failing at the KYC stage and getting stuck in a loop. I addressed this issue by breaking down the journey into stages, removing unnecessary fields, and implementing a system to contact users who didn't complete the sign-up process.

Network Gaming

These 24px icons depict the English Premier League teams from the past four seasons. Each season, as teams update their kits, I have the opportunity to delve into creating pixel versions of their kits for NG's fantasy sports games.

Lately, I've been designing games that feature more realistic jerseys, which I've crafted for leagues such as the English Premier League, NFL, NBA, and NHL.

Football Survivor

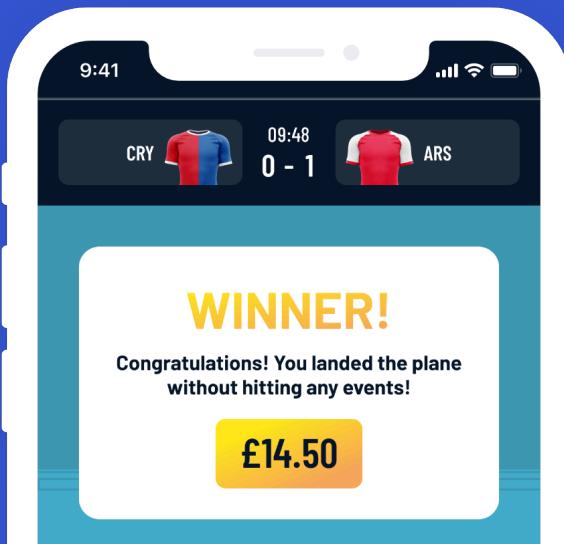

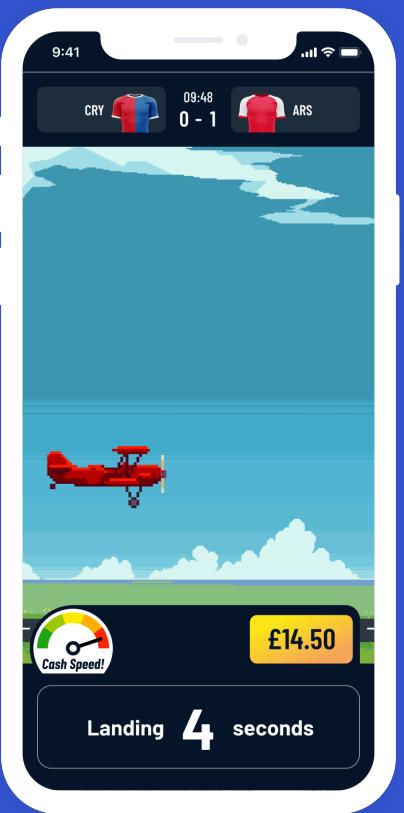

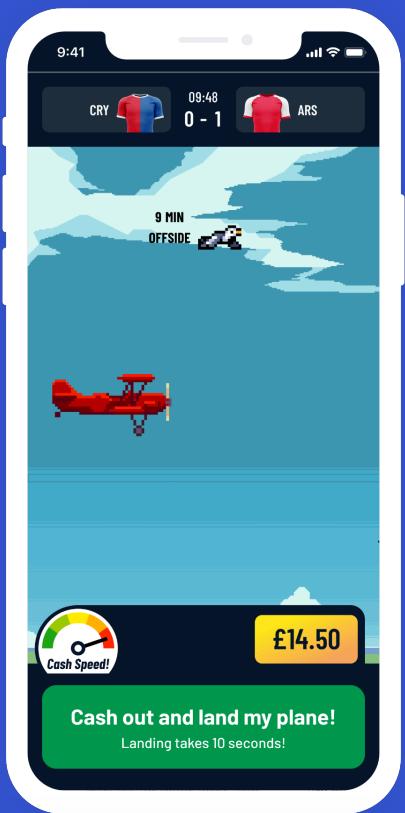

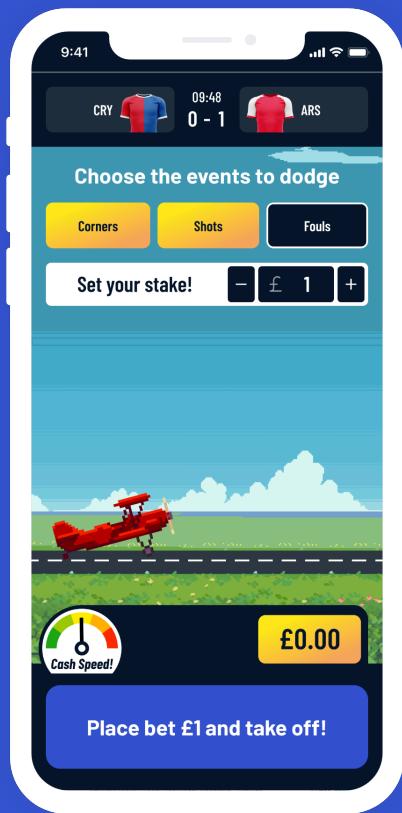

talkSPORT, The Sun

Dream Team, Fitzdares

Survivor football game with a pool of players. Each week players would choose one team they think would win, which in turn locks that team from the next round. Make it past round 5 for a payout and last player standing wins a big share of the prize.

Community App KudosCache

Freelance project to design and prototype an application for a startup company called KudosCache. Their aim was to connect charities with individuals willing to share their skills and expertise for causes they care about.

I've been working on developing the brand and design system to support this startup's launch, including creating a working prototype for investment pitches.

Home Page Experian

I led the complete redesign of the homepage for Experian.co.uk. The design had to seamlessly incorporate the ongoing Experian campaign 'Data Self,' featuring custom messaging and images.

The revamped page introduced a much cleaner design, highlighting benefits, features, and social proof specifically tailored to Experian's free credit score product.

Navigation

Experian

I completely redesigned the navigation of Experian.co.uk after updating the site architecture to enhance its usability on both desktop and mobile platforms. The process involved card sorting and tree testing, which heavily influenced the labelling and layout decisions.

Additionally, I integrated a promotional area to seamlessly highlight current campaigns to users without occupying prime space above the fold. I also crafted a set of icons to support the sub-navigation.

Icon Design

Experian

I designed a set of icons for Experian.co.uk, covering various topics including automotive, education, insurance, lifestyle, politics, travel, and utilities. Each icon was meticulously crafted on a 64px grid with a 2px stroke, ensuring a pixel-perfect appearance.

Additionally, I included a few Easter eggs tailored for the UK market, such as № 10 Downing Street, The Queen on banknotes, and my favourite car, the Mini Cooper.

Landing Page

Experian

I designed a PPC landing page aimed at engaging our free and prospective customers, informing them about the advantages of upgrading to a premium account. This landing page played a pivotal role in the launch of our new product feature, 'Credit Score Builder.'

Utilising cookies, the page dynamically changed its copy and images based on the information we already had about the customer. Additionally, I crafted another set of icons specifically for this page.

Email Design Experian

I designed a set of emails affectionately dubbed 'Project Frank.' Following a slight refresh of the main Experian Consumer site, I updated a suite of emails to ensure consistency in look and feel. These emails were crafted around their own design system, featuring shared components like headers and footers. However, each email had a distinct feel depending on its function—whether it was a service notification, onboarding message, or newsletter. Moreover, I ensured that each email was optimised for both desktop and mobile platforms.

Poker Branding

Unibet Open

I led the rebranding effort for the Unibet Open poker tournament, which hosts multiple events across Europe each year. I redesigned the old logo (top), giving it a bolder appearance while preserving its original essence.

Utilising the same typeface for the logo mark helped align it more closely with Unibet's brand at the time. This initiative marked the beginning of creating the entire brand identity and assets for each event.

It remains a project I fondly refer to as my baby.

Poker Branding

Unibet Open

As part of the new Unibet Open branding, I developed a comprehensive suite of graphics for all major event touch points requiring print materials. These encompassed items such as badges, playing cards, winner cheques, poker chips, lanyards, roll-up banners, poker tables, booths, welcome desks, main table sets, and information booklets.

Additionally, during the events, I provided ongoing support with digital imagery for social channels, live blogs, and TV streams as the tournament progressed.
